experience, at the same time a little frightening for a country girl.

One of my current research interests is reviewing open-access websites for educational/instruction purposes. The Web offers a staggering amount of information, but not all information is good information. I am interested in developing guidelines and criteria to separate the good from the bad, as well as teach others how to effectively critique the information they gather from the Internet. I am also interested in the "Web 2.0" phenomenon. Specifically, I am interested in starting a HPL blog and, if we dream big enough, a wiki for the Health Professions school.

I am grateful to be given this opportunity to work and continue my research here at Hunter College and the Health Professions Library. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me. I can be reached via email at ehhead@hunter.cuny.edu, or please feel free to drop by my office in the library. Hope to see you soon!

Introducing our new librarian

Hello! My name is Erin Head, and I am very pleased to be the new librarian here at the Health Professions Library. I studied and obtained a BS in Anthropology at Binghamton University in 2005, and I received my MLS from the University at Buffalo in February of this year. Moving to New York City has been a very exciting

New MPH Course Offering

Laura Cobus, head librarian will be offering a 3 credit elective course during Summer Session II (7/19/07-8/22/07) for the MPH program titled: Information Research in Public Health.

This course will provide the opportunity for students to pursue the theoretical and practical principles of information research in public health. The nature, production and uses of information and the latest developments in information technology and its impact on the public's health will be examined.

Students will learn the necessary skills to become expert searchers and develop proficiencies in identifying, retrieving, evaluating, and using relevant print, electronic and Internet sources to locate health-based government, evidence based, political, community, and statistical information for in-depth public health research.

"I am looking forward to teaching Information Research in Public Health! It will be fun to discuss the transition and evolution of print to digital media in the context of public health. For example, some argue that we have moved from a grid to a networked culture. We will examine this "network" culture through the lens of wikis, blogs, and podcasts and examine its relevance in public health."

-From Laura Cobus, MLIS, MPA, Head Librarian

New Library Resources:

LAPTOPS for Loan!!

Laptops will soon be coming to the Library. They will be available to students for a maximum of 3 hours. No data can be permanently saved on the hard drive.

Printing is available from laptops to all One Card printers in the library.

WIRELESS NETWORK!

The Health Professions Library has wireless network now. Hunter students, faculty & staff can come bring their laptops, PDAs, or other handheld devices and connect to the Internet.
