BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Donna Edna Shalala was born on February 14, 1941 in Cleveland, Ohio. Donna, along with her twin sister, Diane, of Lebanese descent, were the children of James Abraham Shalala, a real estate salesman, and Edna Smith Shalala, a physical education teacher and a lawyer. James encouraged his Lebanese friends to let their daughters be educated and instilled a strong feminist attitude in their children. In addition, Edna also served as Donna's early role model and motivated her to become a leader. Diane (Donna calls her "best friend in the world") later married and became a high school principal.

Shalala attended West Tech High School and graduated in 1958. She inherited her athletic talent from her mother; winning championships and tournaments in baseball and tennis as a youngster. As a child, Donna was always confident, energetic, and ready to take on challenges. After she graduated high school, her interest in journalism grew as she worked at the Cleveland Press in Ohio.

Shalala received her Bachelor of Arts degree with a concentration in urban studies in 1962 from Western College for Women (WCW), which later merged with Miami University. After her graduation from WCW, she volunteered at the Peace Corps and was stationed in a mud village called Molasani in Southern Iran from 1962 to 1964. She and about 40 volunteers built an agricultural college. During her time with the Peace Corps, she observed and realized the distinct gender inequality in Iran. After returning to the United States, she applied to the New York Times as she was overwhelmingly enthusiastic on becoming a journalist since she was a child but later she returned to school.

She received her Master of Social Science Degree in 1968 and her PhD. with a specialty in urban affairs from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs of Syracuse University, New York, in 1970. From 1965 to 1969, she was the Assistant to the Director of the Metropolitan Studies Program at Syracuse University, and she was later promoted to be the Assistant to the Dean at Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs until 1970. After she left Syracuse, she became an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Bernard M. Baruch College of the City University of New York from 1970 to 1972.

From 1972 to 1979, she was an Associate Professor and Chair for the Program in Politics and Education, at Teacher's College, Columbia University. During Dr. Shalala's tenure at Columbia University, she also served as the Director and Treasurer of the Municipal Assistance Corporation, the body that helped the City during the fiscal crisis, from 1975 to 1977. In 1977 she became the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research at the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under President Carter, serving until 1980.

On October 8th, 1980, Shalala, who coincidentally has the same birthday as Hunter College, became the tenth President of Hunter College. During her administration from 1980 to 1988, Hunter College's spirit and physical structure improved. The twin towers of Hunter College were built; the School of Social Work and Brookdale buildings were renovated; grant and award funds leaped from $2.5 to $11 million; graduate enrollments rose; employment often exceeded affirmative action and equal opportunity goals; an employee assistance program was introduced; a student services program, including an expanded athletic program and a child care center, was established; and academic support and retention strategies began to have an impact on the diverse student body. Her "humanizing" strategy brought national recognition and a strong sense of community to the College.

In 1988, she left Hunter College to become the Chancellor of the University of Wisconsin at Madison. As the first woman to lead a Big Ten school, she was confronted with different kinds of obstacles that were unlikely to be seen in urban colleges such as racial tensions and low-morale issues. She proposed the Madison Plan, a set of programs to fight racial problems on campus urging the university to double the number of minority undergraduates as well as minority faculty members and to increase affiliation with minority colleges and financial assistance to low-income students. She also began to pay attention to undergraduates and raised faculty salaries.

In January 1993, Shalala was appointed by President Bill Clinton the U.S. Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) where she oversaw public health and social welfare programs becoming the longest serving HHS Secretary. Her term continued until January 20, 2001 when President Clinton's term ended.

On June 1, 2001, Donna Shalala became a Professor of Political Science and the President of the University of Miami. In 2007, President George W. Bush appointed Shalala as co-chair, with Senator Robert Dole, to the Commission on Care for America's Returning Wounded Warriors. In 2008, President George W. Bush presented her with the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor. In 2009, Shalala was appointed as the Chair for the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation initiative on the future of nursing in America at the Institute of Medicine. In 2014, as the President of University of Miami, Shalala received the Harry S. Truman Legacy of Leadership Award. In September 2014, Dr. Shalala announced she planned to retire as President of the University of Miami at the end of the 2014-2015 academic year.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The President Donna E. Shalala Collection in Archives & Special Collections of the Hunter College Libraries provides exclusive information on President Shalala's tenure at Hunter College from January 1980 to December 1987. The collection consist of addresses, articles, biographical sources, committees, correspondence, memoranda, reports, minutes, news clippings, programs, publications, writings, and speeches. The most remarkable section in the President Donna E. Shalala Collection that would attract researchers' attention are papers related to Hunter College's School of Health Sciences, School of Nursing, School of Social Work, and the Women's Studies Department, as well as events such as her inauguration as President, the opening of the East and West Buildings, Career Exploration, etc.

The Shalala collection is arranged in seven series. The recommended series and subseries of the collection are: Series III Hunter College, Subseries 3.1 – Academic Departments, Studies Programs, and Professional Schools, Subseries 3.2 - Administration, and Series 6, Subseries 6.2 - Writings by Donna E. Shalala. Subseries 3.1 includes information regarding different departments of Hunter College; interesting sections within Subseries 3.2 – Administration would be Budgets, Campus Schools, Career Exploration, East and West Buildings Planning and Inauguration, and Students related files; Subseries 6.2 - Writings by Donna E. Shalala includes book chapters, journal articles, newspaper articles, and speeches (one with a cassette tape) that were published during her tenure at Hunter College.

Researchers should find the Shalala Collection to be valuable and informative as it highlights the extraordinary efforts of a college president who is a highly prestigious political figure, administrator, pragmatic educator, and an innate leader. Her greatest accomplishment as the tenth President of Hunter College was in creating equal opportunities and a positive environment for our students, faculty, and staff.

For those who wish to learn more about Donna E. Shalala's career, her papers can also be found in multiple institutions. The University of Wisconsin's Archives houses Donna Shalala's administration records during her tenure at the university; it includes an oral history interview conducted with President Shalala through University of Wisconsin's Madison Oral History Program in 1988 which can be found in <http://digital.library.wisc.edu/1793/66138>. One may also conduct a search through the National Archives database <http://www.archives.gov> or inquire from the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library for materials related to her career as the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research (1977-1980) and the William J. Clinton Presidential Library regarding to Donna E. Shalala's tenure as the Secretary of Health and Human Services (1993-2001).
