SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

On April 11, 1961, the municipal colleges of the City of New York (City, Hunter, Brooklyn and Queens) along with the community colleges of Staten Island, the Bronx, and Queens were organized into The City University of New York. The unification of the municipal and community colleges facilitated access to higher education to a larger contingent of local, national, and international students. Presently, The City University of New York consists of the 11 four-year colleges, 7 community colleges, Macaulay Honors College at CUNY, CUNY Graduate Center, CUNY School of Public Health, CUNY Graduate School of Journalism, CUNY School of Professional Studies, and CUNY School of Law. Since its inception CUNY's central office has generated a variety of publications covering many aspects of its operation. The publications of the City University of New York Collection consists of reports, bulletins, newsletters, handbooks, newspapers, proposals, and periodicals spanning the years 1963 to the Present. The publications are arranged alphabetically by title and chronologically therein.

The Master Plan of the City University of New York comprises reports, drafts, blueprints, budgets, statements, guidelines, memoranda, correspondence, and proposals for the planning and renovation/construction of facilities throughout the 24 campuses. These plans range from the years 1950 to the Present.
